See who’s moving up in the Buffalo Niagara workforce

The Buffalo News is your place to follow the careers of Western New York’s business community. Share business achievements — years, as well as those of your co-workers, family and neighbors — with us in The Sunday Business News and at BuffaloNews.com. As always, the Business People column is offered as a reader service; it’s prepared by staff in The News’ editorial department and is not a paid advertisement.

To include your recent hire, promotion or honor, send your information to buffalonext@buffnews.com.

* Special offer good on the purchase of a bath tub or shower, one of each, when purchased during a limited time. See offer for full details. Offer cannot be combined with any other Bath Fitter or Brickell Avenue offers. Offer expires 10/31/2022.

Goldberg Segalla named Joseph R. Brown to the firm’s employment and labor group in Buffalo. Brown helps clients devise strategies to minimize risk and resolve problems in cost-effective manners.

The WNY Women’s Foundation named Angela Blask to its board of directors. She will play a role in shaping stories about the organization’s impact — enhancing awareness of the foundation’s mission to create opportunities for women.

Goldberg Segalla partner Joseph M. Haines has been elected to the Council of the American Bar Association’s Section of Litigation.

The University at Buffalo School of Management elected Carrie Phillips, a partner in the K一人 and Shellman, retired assistant deputy for alumni engagement, UB School of Management, posthumously, for his exceptional service to the school.

SUNY Erie Community College elected Donna Shelton as a participant in the Karon Lee Spalding Global Fellowship for Leaders of Color program.

The John R. Oishei Foundation named Regina Smith as a participant in the Oishei Project, as a participant in the Karon Lee Spalding Global Fellowship for Leaders of Color program.

Tony Gagliardi joined cryptocurrency exchange Kraken, a San Francisco-based company. He is responsible for maintaining the company’s global policies to combat the risks of money laundering, terrorism financing, and sanctions evasion and the training of staff on such risks.

The Randolph Academy named Tanya Callahan, a public school district that educates children with emotional and mental health disabilities, named Susan Locke-Scott to the board. Locke-Scott was appointed by the board of trustees to the newly created position, the data collection and analysis officer.

The WNY Women’s Foundation named Emma Wright as a marketing and communications agency fellow. In this role, she will work alongside the entire team to gain firsthand experience by supporting and overseeing multi-channel strategies.